

Paula McGee – Dover, Arkansas

I'm a one-woman show, creating and designing fantastical characters from my whimsical imagination... An imagination that I used prolifically as a child to create my own wonderland. Though at that time my wonderland looked like mud pies decorated with wildflowers and daisy chains served as party snacks to my Raggedy Anne doll and some stick people....

I began designing figures when the kids were older, so I could use my artistic abilities in a new way. I love texture so fabrics were my natural choice for a base medium (painters paint on a cloth canvas). I paint/draw the faces and features on all of my dolls. I love costuming the figures in elaborate Victorian, Edwardian, Medieval mixed eras and of course woodland wear. I draw my ideas from the depths of Shakespeare, Folklore & Fairytale, Nursery Rhyme, and children's storybooks; of which I have a good sized library. I create figurative fiber art. I connect to people through my works. And I believe that's why, all my life, I crave to make the art I do. Because I love the feelings of happiness my dolls give to others. www.paulasdollhouse.net

Take the fear out of becoming creative when drawing faces. Paula's style is creative; she has a very detailed stylized artistic flair. Learn to draw flat faces on cloth, achieving depth and detail in facial features. You will walk out of this class with at least one doll pin to wear and show off. This class covers placement of features on the head, drawing the facial features, eyes, nose and mouth. Shading and highlighting will create the depth and dimension that so many faces long for. Freckles aren't just spots!

Paula McGee – Drawing Faces on Cloth – Supply List:

Fabric for heads - a fat quarter will be more than enough (stitch up more than one head!)
Color pencils (prismacolor is my only brand), Fine tip artist markers/pens - sharpie has a new extremely fine tip pen that I love, Krylon clear acrylic spray, stuffing, needle and thread
