

Layl McDill * Minneapolis, Minnesota

Layl has been working in polymer clay since 1993 when she started adding it to her mixed media sculptures and quilts. After experimenting with the millefiori technique for about 5 years she decided to move into working with clay almost exclusively. Her earliest memory is of playing with play dough and now she is playing with clay for a living. The millefiori process of stacking colors together to form a cane that can be sliced to reveal a tiny design or picture never ceases to amaze. Layl uses these tiny slices to construct larger sculptures of whimsical women and animals. Sometimes it seems that these women and creatures just climb out of my piles of polymer clay. She wishes those that experience her sculptures can feel some of that childhood magic that she feels as they are play with the clay.

Goddess with Image Transfer

Friday #1D10

1 Day 9am-4 or 4:30pm

Workshop Media – Polymer

Wall Hanging approx. 10” to 12”

Skill Level – All Levels Welcome

Kit fee $35.00

Homework: Only if you bring your own drawing

Are you ready to make your own glittering goddess? Create a face using an image transfer, use a drawing from Layl's collection or your own drawing. Learn how to transfer black and white image onto colored clay which you will create with Layl's "Faux watercolor technique". Then build an armature which will be covered with polymer clay. Layl is teaching Millefiori techniques to make flowers, stars, feathers, dragonfly wings and abstract designs. You will also add glitter layers- everyone knows everything is better with glitter

Go to the next page for more pictures and the Supply list

Layl McDill Goddess with Image Transfer Supply List

Supply kit: $35 which includes:

Pre-conditioned and mixed colors (your choice), Also 2 small Silly Millies (your choice of designs), glitter, face drawing to transfer, scrap clay.

Optional supplies to bring:

You can bring any millefiori canes of your own.

If you have your own drawing that you would like to transfer you will be able to email a scan copy to Layl and she will print it out and bring it to the workshop.

Layl also has other Silly Millies that you can purchase if needed.

